

PLEASE JOIN US: RELIGION AND PUBLIC HEALTH COMMUNITY OF SCHOLARS RECEPTION

Anyone in the Emory University and larger Atlanta community who is interested in knowing more about the unique religion and public health educational resources at Emory are invited to meet faculty and student scholars from other disciplines across the university to learn what is happening at this interdisciplinary intersection.

Join us to discover ways you can be involved in this exciting field.

Wednesday, November 9, 2022 • 5:00-6:30 P.M.
Brooks Commons, Candler School of Theology

Graduates and current students taking interdisciplinary coursework, enrolled in the dual-degree program (MDiv/MPH and MTS/MPH), and working for the Certificate in Religion and Health will discuss their interprofessional learning experiences at Emory. Join us and learn about the ways in which religion and public health can work together in research and practice.

– Light refreshments will be served –
No RSVP required • All are welcome!
